BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Powder Mill at Central City, W. Va., Destroyed.

THREE MEN INSTANTLY KILLED.

The Shock Distinctly Felt Six Miles Away—Fourteen Thousand Pounds of Powder Go Up—Bits of Human Flesh
Blown 300 Yards—Fifty Workmen's Miraculous Escape.

CATLETSBURG, Ky., Aug. 15.—An explosion that shook every building in the town took place at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Soon after it was learned that the large powder mill at Central City, W. Va., six miles from here, was blown up by an accidental discharge of powder.

All the employees of the factory were busily engaged at their work when the awful explosion occurred. How it occurred no one knows. In an instant there was a mighty shock. Smoke and pieces of human flesh could be seen in the air. The air was like a black cloud filled with everything imaginable. Pieces of the building were blown for a mile or more.

The building in which the powder was stored was about 20 by 30 feet. As only the two men who are missing were in the destroyed house at the time, it is believed by the employees who escaped that the missing men were working when they accidentally struck something with a hammer, which caused the explosion.

The building from which the explosion occurred is totally destroyed, and not a trace of it remains. Persons who had never visited the place before could not tell where the building had been situated. As far as can be ascertained there are two men missing and one seriously injured, while several are slightly hurt.

J. W. Bales, of Huntington, W. Va., was missing. At 9 o'clock parts of his remains were found under the river bank about 300 yards from the place. The only part about the body that can be identified is the hair. Mr. Bales leaves a wife who is prostrate over the loss of her husband. Timothy Cooney, of the east, is also missing.

A man's foot was found about 200 yards from the place. Men are searching all parts of the grounds for his body, or parts of his body, as they may be found.

George Wells' skull was fractured by a falling timber and he cannot recover. Drs. Hopkins, Whorton, Sturgill and Shearley, of Ceredo, as well as the Huntington physician were in attendance applying the proper remedy to the injured.

A. Mr. Justice was badly cut on the head and arm by a piece of timber. As near as can be ascertained, there were five others, whose names could not be learned, who were slightly injured.

The authorities have stationed police at every entrance to prevent the throng of people rushing near the destroyed buildings. Almost every building is more or less destroyed in some way.

There yet remains one magazine filled with powder which did not explode, and it is feared that it will catch fire and cause a worse explosion than this.

The amount of powder said to have been burned was nearly 14,000 pounds. There were about fifty men employed at the time, and as it was no one could tell how they escaped alive.

None of the machinery was in operation, and had been stopped for about five minutes. This factory has not been in operation more than two months. The factory is situated in the upper end of Wayne county, W. Va., about six miles from here.

The report was distinctly heard here, and even shook the houses. A black piece of smoke could be seen coming up from behind the hills which looked much like a rain cloud, but it soon cleared away and was plain to the people what had happened.

The dwelling house of John Webb, a half mile from the scene, was badly shaken up. Even the dishes on the table were broken into pieces.

The screams from women were heard from several places, asking: "Was my husband or my son hurt?"

A part of the machinery was totally destroyed, while other parts were not hurt. An iron shaft weighing nearly 500 pounds was carried a distance of 200 yards.

The factory is said to have cost $100,000. The damage done by the explosion will not be less than $10,000. One of the employees related the following story: "I came to work at the usual time this morning. We had been at work about one hour and a half. At the time of the explosion the machinery was not running. I heard the report and ran out to see what happened. The air was filled with pieces of timber, going in all directions. Soon they began to fall here and there so thick that I found it difficult to keep from being hit. I dodged them the best I could, but was struck on the shoulder by a piece of board and knocked senseless. As soon as I had regained consciousness I made my way to the place where I knew Mr. Bales and Mr. Cooney had been at work. When I reached the spot not a trace of their bodies could be found."

Not long after the explosion people commenced to arrive from surrounding houses, inquiring whether or not their friends had been hurt. As it is, every building is damaged in some way, and it will require some time to rebuild what has been destroyed.

STATISTICS OF CITIES.

The Census Office Issues an Interesting Bulletin.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The census office has issued a bulletin on the statistics of cities of the United States. The returns are yet incomplete, but a statement, comprising fifty of the principal cities is given.

Streets, giving details as to length, width, paving, sidewalks, shade trees, parking, percentage of street area to city area, number of population per mile of street, average yearly cost of construction and repairs, and average yearly cost of cleaning.

Street lighting, showing the number and kind of lamps, the annual cost per lamp, and cost per head of population.

Water works, showing the estimated daily capacity of supply, capacity of reservoirs, average daily consumption, number of miles of mains, total cost of works, and the annual average charge of water supply.

Sewers, showing total length, number of outlets, proportion of population to each mile of sewer, total cost of sewer system and annual cost of maintenance of cleaning.

Police force, showing the number of men employed, average annual number of arrests, value of lost and stolen property recovered, and annual cost of the force and cost per head of population.

Fire departments, showing the number of men employed, apparatuses in use, fire-alarm statistics, annual cost of departments, casualties and deaths, and percentages of general interest relating to the fire departments of cities.

From the tables it appears that the annual cost of each gas lamp in cities varies from $50 in New Orleans to $17.50 in Hoboken; while the annual cost of each electric lamp varies from $40.65 in San Francisco to $68 in Chicago. The bulletin shows that gas lamps compose more than 60 per cent. of all classes used for street lighting, but are rarely used exclusively for that purpose. Electric lighting for streets appears to be most favored in cities having more than 100,000 population.

Thirty-five cities of those comprising the bulletin own their own water works, the average cost of maintenance of the works being $3,791.04.

In cities of less than 100,000 inhabitants there is an average of 3.75 patrolmen to the square mile and 4.3 miles of street to each patrolman, who makes annually an average of fifty-one arrests. The cost of the force to each head of population is $0.78, varying from $1.26 in New Haven to $0.60 in Nashville.

The average death rate in the police force of all the cities is 55 per 1,000, varying from 197 per 1,000 in Lowell and 133 per 1,000 in Hoboken to 12 per 1,000 in New York city, 15 per 1,000 in Minneapolis, and 132 per 1,000 in Hartford.

In twenty-two cities of over 100,000 inhabitants each the average annual cost of the fire department to each head of population is eighty-one cents, varying from $1.75 in Boston and $1.06 in New York city to sixty-four cents in Chicago, sixty cents in Philadelphia, seventy cents in Brooklyn, sixty-three cents in St. Louis, thirty-five cents in Baltimore, $1.15 in San Francisco, and ninety-two cents in Cincinnati.

In cities under 100,000 inhabitants the average annual cost of the fire department to each head of population is $0.71.

In twenty-one cities of over 100,000 inhabitants each, the total loss by fire during 1889 was $2.20 to each head of population, ranging from $0.27 in Buffalo, $3.32 in St. Louis and $3.11 in Brooklyn, to $1.11 in Baltimore, $1.02 in Newark and $0.55 in Washington. In twenty-one cities of less than 100,000 inhabitants each, the total loss by fire during 1889 was $1.45 to each head of population, ranging from $0.68 in La Crosse, $4.97 in Portland and $3.31 in Rockford, to $0.21 in Newport, $0.19 in Hartford and $0.16 in Lawrence. The large fire in Lynn, Mass., $89.87 to each head of population, has not been included in any favor.

The average daily consumption of water in New York is 112,000,000 gallons, Chicago 100,000,000 gallons and Philadelphia 116,500,000 gallons. Although Buffalo consumes only 50,000,000 gallons daily, it represents the largest amount, 196 gallons daily, consumed by each head of population. The total length of sewers of the three largest cities are New York 464.7 miles, Chicago 525 and Philadelphia 380.

New York has 1,027 men attached to its fire department, Chicago 916 and Philadelphia 521.

New York city, with a total of 3,421 miles of street, has 499 officers, detectives, etc., and 2,922 patrolmen. The average number of arrests annually is 74,594, average number of station house lodgers annually, 138,604. Value of lost and stolen property recovered, $987,031. The average cost of the New York force was $4,891,376; Chicago, $979,894; Philadelphia, $1,000,000, and Boston, $963,355.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Dun & Company's Weekly Report of Business.

THE GRAIN MARKET AFFECTED.

Russia's Actions in Regard to Rye Cut a Prominent Figure in Prices in Our Own Market — Crop Prospects Growing Brighter — Failures of the Week.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade says: The prohibition of exports of rye by Russia, because of official declaration that famine is pending, has suddenly affected the grain markets of the world. Russia usually exports about 50,000,000 bushels of rye, and men reason that other grain in large quantities will be required.

Crop prospects grow brighter every day, and with assurances that the country will not only have enormous supplies of grain, but a market for it at good prices, business is improving throughout the north. The movement begins close to the farms: country merchants are buying more freely, and their purchases are felt by wholesalers and manufacturers.

Trade at Boston shows improvement, wool sales reaching 3,752,000 pounds, and demand for goods improving. Cotton goods are also in better demand.

At Philadelphia there is general improvement, particularly in wool and woolens, in dress goods, in paints and in tobacco. At Cleveland trade shows some improvement, though iron is demoralized. At Fort Wayne improvement is noticed, although the building trade is 50 per cent. behind last year's, but at Cincinnati trade is only fair, southern business being smaller.

At Chicago increase is noted in almost every branch of trade except cured meats, wheat receipts being five-fold last year's. At St. Louis business is increasing in almost all lines, though lumber and building materials are dull, and at Kansas City the cattle and packing trades are light and wheat not moving freely, but general trade is improving and healthy. At St. Paul business is unusually brisk and country merchants buying very freely.

EVENING BULLETIN.

DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
ROSSER & McCARTHY,
Proprietors.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1891.

There oughtn't be much grumbling among Mason County farmers about hard times these days. At a fair estimate fully 250,000 bushels of new wheat have recently been delivered in this city, and most of it was grown in Mason. Figure at 85 cents per bushel—the prevailing price—and you have the sum of $212,000 that has been paid out by the millers and grain merchants of Maysville. In addition to this a great deal of tobacco has been delivered in the past month or so, and this has added considerable cash to the amount that has lately gone into the hands of the people. There is no cause for hard times.

"The California tin mines are being developed by English capital, under English management, and yet we are told that we must willingly pay $1 a box in addition to the former price for roofing tin, because we are thereby aiding an American industry. It looks to a man up a tree as if the aid was about equally divided between the English capitalist and the Welch tin-plate manufacturer, while it is all contributed by the American consumer."

This from the Owen News is to the point. The tin-plate business is a practical illustration of that unjust principal the Republicans advocate of taxing the many for the benefit of the few.

The fair next week will give Maysville merchants a splendid opportunity to advertise their goods and wares throughout a wide territory. It is an opportunity that should be taken advantage of, as it will not occur again for twelve months.

There is always a big attendance from Bracken, Robertson, Fleming, Nicholas, Bourbon, Bath, Lewis and Brown and Adams counties, and our business men should endeavor to induce as many of these people as possible to do their trading in Maysville. How can this be done? The only way is to show them that it is to their advantage to do their buying here. Show them that they can get just as much for a dollar in Maysville as at Cincinnati or any other place, show them that just as big bargains can be obtained in our stores as anywhere else.

A Cincinnati man purchased a number of fine pictures at Kackley & McDougle's a few days ago. Why? Simply because he couldn't buy such pictures in Cincinnati for the same money. That's what he stated, and the same is true in other lines of business. You can get more for your money here in Maysville than you can in Cincinnati.

How can you get these facts before the many who will be here next week? How can you get your name, your business and your bargains before the people? The best way, and the cheapest, is by advertising in the EVENING BULLETIN. It will cost but a few dollars to have a nice advertisement all week. In fact, the cost is really insignificant. Every business man should be represented in our columns during the fair.

Big Land Suit.

Attorney-General-elect W. J. Hendrick and Captain Wm. Abbott, as attorneys, have brought suit at Pineville on a claim for $1,633,000. The plaintiff is Archer Harman, a wealthy promoter who represents Eastern capitalists, and he seeks to enjoin payment for 200,000 acres of land in Bell, Clay, Leslie, Letcher and Harlan counties, lying principally upon the Red Bird Fork of the Kentucky River. The defendants are the Kentucky Coal, Iron and Development Company (limited), the Kentucky Ridge Development Company (limited), I. W. Parmenter, E. H. Patterson, J. H. Allen, the Atlantic Trust Company, of New York, and James Maverick, representative of the Belgian and English syndicates, to whom the land has been sold. Harmer has written contracts, upon which he bases his claim. He wants either the injunction for the payment of the money, or, as an alternative, the conveyance to himself of one-third of the 200,000 acres of land. The total price to be paid for the land is $5,000,000.

Pithy Points From Washington.

That man's religion is a fraud, who never raises a voice against saloons.

That man's religion is a burlesque, who either will or does not give up selling liquor.

That man's religion is base, who takes his whisky at a saloon just the same as any common drunkard.

That man's religion will carry him to perdition, who cares more for whisky than he cares for the souls of men.

That man's religion will land him in hell, who finds more time to devote to liquor than he finds to devote to his Creator.

THE SNOW BARN.

A New and Greatly Improved Method of Curing Burley Tobacco.

The Snow barn which Dr. Jno. M. Frazee has on his farm near German-town is attracting a great deal of attention in that section, especially from those who are interested in growing tobacco. The barn was erected to test the new and improved method of curing tobacco, and the test is proving a success beyond a doubt.

The plan is entirely different from the old method. As the leaves mature and ripen they are broken from the stalk, placed in baskets made especially for the purpose, and hauled to the barn. The sticks used are provided with wires on which the leaves are strung and the sticks are then placed in racks in the barn.

The curing is done by heat, the furnace being placed in the basement of the building. The inventor claims that a half cord of wood will cure 2,000 pounds quicker than 500 pounds can be cured in the common log barn with two cords of wood.

By this plan the grower is enabled to cure every leaf on the stalk. This is a big saving, as the lower leaves are generally lost entirely or made poor trash if left on the plant until it ripens.

The barn Dr. Frazee has on his farm will hold from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds. He began curing his crop this year about August 1st. The barn has been filled twice and was filled Thursday for the third time. As the tobacco is cured it is taken out and placed in the bulk. It requires only five or six days to cure a barn. It makes a very bright leaf.

The inventor claims that this method of curing adds 15 per cent. to the weight of the tobacco and 500 per cent. to its value. If this can be done no one will question that it's to the interest of the farmers to adopt the new plan of curing.

The BULLETIN suggests to Dr. Frazee to exhibit some samples cured by the new process at the Maysville fair next week.

The favorable impression produced on the first appearance of the agreeable liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs a few years ago has been more than confirmed by the pleasant experience of all who have used it, and the success of the proprietors and manufacturers of the California Fig Syrup Company.

Correspondence of BULLETIN.

CAMP GROUNDS, August 14.

Song by the choir; prayer; text: "I am God and there is none else." Sermon by Dr. H. A. M. Henderson, of Cincinnati. Audience select; splendid presentation of the principles of the Christian religion—a warm, earnest outpouring from the heart—an incarnated gospel—developing the grand truth that while one may be ignorant of the Trinity and operation of the Holy Spirit, may know nothing of the shorter or longer catechism, or the Westminster Confession of Faith, yet with "one good, honest feeling" he is better off than the greatest metaphysician in the world. This was illustrated by the story of the illiterate Scottish woman, who on being told by the parish priest that she, never having learned her catechism, was too ignorant to partake of the communion, replied, in her grief: "If I cannot speak for Jesus, I can die for him."

The acoustics of the auditorium were never better illustrated than to-day. A lady sitting on the upper balcony of the rear cottages heard distinctly the lowest tones of Dr. Henderson's voice. His platform talks are all in the conversational tone. You have to get as close to him as to a music box to enjoy the delicate intonations of his voice. He climbs a rainbow with the dexterity of an oratorical artist.

Secretary Glenn informs your correspondent that he has all his arrangements complete for the Sunday preaching and singing. Dr. Henderson will be the principal speaker and Profs. Fog and Bristow, supported by an excellent choir, will furnish the music. J. B. H.

OBITUARY.

Died, at her residence near Washington, Mason County, Ky., August 8, 1891, after a long and painful illness, Mrs. Lucy M. Hunter, in the year of her age.

The subject mentioned above demands more than the brief passing word; her life was not an uneventful one; no human life, if we could but fully know, ever is. Lucy Minor Otey Goggin was the second daughter of the late Colonel L. B. Goggin. On October 1, 1858, she was married to her first husband, Colonel James W. H. H. of Lynchburg, Va., a relative of the family and a man of the very highest character and standing in the community where he lived. She went with him to Virginia; he died there July 17, 1862, and then she and her infant son, Lawrence Horton, came "through the lines" back to her Kentucky home, and she remained an inmate of her father's house until November 18, 1870, when she married Robert L. Hunter, Esq., by whom she had one child, a daughter, Lucy, who leaves to mourn her loss two children, a stepdaughter, three grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs. R. E. Maltby and Mrs. Emma Pollitt; a brother, Geo. G. Goggin; an aunt, Mrs. Elvira D. Gill; several nephews, a large number of relatives scattered in different States, and perhaps as many warm and sympathetic friends as any woman who ever lived or died in this country. "Mitt," as she was fondly known to all her intimate friends, enjoyed herself to all her heart's content in her heart and impulsive character. Of fine personal appearance, her abounding life, brightness, light-heartedness and joyousness were a constant source of admiration and delight to all her friends and associates. She was a thoroughly good woman, true and faithful in all the varied duties of her life.

Open, frank and impetuous always she was one of the kindest-hearted women we have ever known, and hundred of the poor, both white and black, were the beneficiaries of her manifestations of her kindness, and will deplore her loss as that of a true friend and neighbor, which cannot easily be replaced. It seems hard that one apparently so strong and vigorous, so very useful to others and so bright and happy in her life should at this time and in this way be called upon to leave it. But in the mysterious providence of God, a relentless hand in the simple disease fastened its merciless hands upon her, and was too strong for her human affection could do, but all in vain. She fully knew and realized her coming fate and bowed with humble submission to the Master's will, and though her illness was long, wearisome and painful, she bore it all with that fortitude and Christian resignation, born of a firm faith in Him who teaches us to believe that "what we know not now, we shall know hereafter," and that we may safely trust Him, for however dark and intricate His ways, yet, "He doeth all things well."

Kindly and tenderly, sadly and sorrowfully, yet very hopefully, we have laid the beloved form to rest by the side of the sleeping mother, father, brother and sisters, in the old Washington graveyard—that old town on the hill so quiet, yet so much more populous than the little old town in the valley below. There she will peacefully sleep, but not forever. Oh, no! This is the true word of comfort and joy I give to sorrowing kindred. Lucy's last words were: "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in Me shall never die," and "if one liveth and believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live again." So, we may all of us if we will, meet "Mitt" again, look into the beaming countenance, see the glad bright eyes again, clasp again the warm hand in kindly greeting, and hear her words of most joyous welcome from her sweet smiling lips. Thanks be to God, not for the beauty of the thought, or the grand, bold, commanding words, but for the grace and splendid glory of the firm faith that makes us not only hope but feel this to be true. And so, in bidding "Cousin Mitt" good night, and believing we shall meet again in "the morning," I quote the words of another:

"She is at rest, where the green grasses quiver, As the breeze kisses the sanctified sod; Her redeemed soul has returned to its giver; Feet that grew weary earth's journey have trod, Stilled the warm heart, full of sympathy ever; Gentle hands clasped after life's long endeavor; Loved, loving, lovely eyes closed forever, Sealed with His seal by the Angel of God.

She is at rest, in the city of slumber, Death's holy city so calm and so fair; Grief nevermore can her free soul encumber; God's perfect peace will abide with her there; Nevermore weariness, nevermore weeping, Can reach the dear one, so quietly sleeping; Nor pain or distress round her pillow be creeping, Banished forever are sorrow and care.

"She is at rest, from life's lingering fever, Done is the journey her brave feet have trod, Death's embrace reluctantly leaves her, Tearfully baw to the chaste rod.

"Once more a model to mortals is given, Once more a gem from life setting is given, Once more a soul a pass on into Heaven, She is at rest in the bosom of God."

They leave a family of three sons and two daughters and many grandchildren to mourn their loss. HIDDEN TREASURES.

They Are Buried Somewhere Along the Ohio River.

WORTH THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS

Mexican Monks Hide the Jewels Away Years Ago and Now a Strange Body of People Are Looking For Wild Stories of Midnight Searches.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Aug. 15.—Buried somewhere on the bank or in the Ohio river, about one mile below this city, is supposed to be a treasure worth thousands of dollars. The earth in the neighborhood of where tradition says the treasure is safely hidden is dug full of holes, the work of unsuccessful searchers in past years. Every now and then the story of this treasure is revived, and this revival is followed by fresh holes and an emigration of queer characters into the neighborhood.

Mysterious Searchers.

During the past few weeks a band of long-haired, peculiar-looking, solemn-faced individuals has been at work on the treasure ground. Where they came from no one seems to know. Each man is armed with a pick, and spade, and a small hazel branch suspended from the hand by a peculiarly-twisted string. The actions of these men were such as to attract the attention of even those who are accustomed to seeing cranks prowling around in the neighborhood. One of the men, whose emaciated form and hoary looks gave evidence of an existence of at least four score years, seemed to be the leader of the party.

How They Work.

Placing the men in line at regular intervals he told them to each hold his branch at arm's length and walk across the field. At the command each advanced slowly with eyes intent on the ground and every muscle strained to prevent any unnecessary motion of the body. These men of peculiar action are diviners and the nude hazel branches which they held suspended from the hand divining rods. These rods are supposed to indicate by bending or pointing downward when the spot where the treasure is reached is passed over.

A Romantic Story.

The story of the buried treasures is a romantic one, and that the main incidents are true recent developments prove. Along about the close of the last century a school of Jesuit fathers left their monastery in Mexico, intending to join some brethren at Pittsburgh. They came overland to the Mississippi river, bringing chests of treasures with them. The gold and jewels were placed on a rudely constructed raft, and the party slowly moved up stream to the Ohio, which river was entered. At last the falls opposite Louisville were reached. After many hours of arduous labor the dangerous rocks were passed and safety seemed in sight.

Caught in the "Big Eddy."

But a few as treacherous as the hidden rocks awaited the frail vessel and determined crew. The "Big Eddy," which swirls and whirls today like a miniature maelstrom a short distance below the falls, was as dangerous then as now. The raft and its precious freight were caught in its irresistible current and whirled round and round until thrown against a big pointed rock, which from its peculiar shape is now called the jut. The boat was wrecked, the monks barely having time to get ashore with their belongings before it went to pieces and disappeared in the bowels of the "Big Eddy." Further progress was out of the question, so the monks made preparations to remain where they were. A suitable place was selected and the treasure was buried. The Jesuits, the story went, built themselves a chapel and a home at the mouth of a little creek fourteen miles above Jeffersonville.

This part of the story at least has been substantiated by the finding only recently of the foundation of a building on the very spot where tradition said the little band erected their chapel. When the monks left or where they went no one can tell. How the story that they failed to take their treasure originated the old inhabitant fails to tell.

One Box Was Found.

But he does give it as a fact, witnessed partly with his own eyes, that about forty-five years ago one of the little hazel-branch diviners in the hands of a searcher pointed suddenly downward, and, on digging in the spot indicated, a little box containing Spanish gold coin was found. Since then many wild stories of midnight searches, hastily driven wagons and flickering lanterns have been told, but these may have had their foundation in the fact that the old graveyard is located near the treasure grounds.

CONSULAR CERTIFICATES

Necessary Before Chinamen Will Be Allowed to Land.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Collector Phelps stopped the landing of Chinamen from the steamer Oceanic. The order was due to a letter from the treasury department quoting a decision of the United States supreme court in the case of Wan Sing. The latter was a laborer, and wished to land on the ground of prior residence. The court held that no Chinese, merchant or otherwise, could land in the United States unless he was provided with a consular certificate. To obtain this certificate he would have to prove he was conducting a mercantile business in this country, which would be impossible in China. The collector holds that this practically excludes all Chinese except those connected with the diplomatic corps.

George Jones Laid to Rest.

CARROLLTON, O., Aug. 15.—John A. Lawrence, a farmer of Lee township, was mixing blue vitriol and nitric acid, the materials exploded and blinded and disfigured him, and he may die.

COLLISION OF TRAINS.

Several Passengers Injured, Two Probably Fatally.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 15.—An express train on the Reading railroad collided with a freight train at Egg Harbor City yesterday evening. Several passengers on the express were injured, two fatally. Both engines were completely wrecked and the combination car, one passenger coach and two freight cars were demolished.

The names of the injured are:

M. T. Orton, of Philadelphia; broken nose, hand and lip injured.

Somers Ireland, of Linwood, N. J.; contusion of right wrist joint and lacerated wound on forehead.

William Mahler, of Philadelphia; right arm, elbow and eye cut.

Henry W. Hoffman, of Atlantic City; slight cuts and legs bruised.

W. B. Evans, of Atlantic City; hand mangled.

Mrs. Ottob Bettle, of Philadelphia; scalded seriously.

Thomas Wilson, of Camden, N. J.; seriously injured about the body and legs.

Thomas Hartman, of Camden, N. J.; engineer of the express, both legs broken and otherwise injured.

Five other passengers were taken to the American hotel at Egg Harbor City and physicians summoned. One of these is believed to be fatally injured. Their names have not yet been learned. A special relief train was immediately sent to the scene from this city and the five men named brought here.

DESPERATE MAN'S DEED.

He Robs a Gambler's Joint of the Money

He Lost.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 15.—A boldly conceived robbery, which has a touch of the Jesse James' method, occurred about the noon hour. Sam Wagner and son keep a palatial saloon with gambling rooms upstairs, at 10 South Main street.

During the past three days a stranger, who claimed Chattanooga as his home, has been playing faro bank and lost a large sum of money. Early yesterday morning the stranger went broke and begged for a loan. Sam Wagner, Sr., accommodated him and the stranger signed E. E. Poleng to a receipt.

Poleng went out and lost $10 against another faro bank. With the remainder he bought himself a double-action revolver. At noon Poleng entered Wagner's gambling rooms. Steve and Bill Lecompte, well known gamblers, and S. Wagner, Sr., were the only occupants of the room. Pulling out his revolver Poeng ordered Wagner to hand over the bank roll.

"I will kill two of you and then shoot myself," grimly said the robber. The roll, amounting to $196, was handed out and Poleng coolly made his escape, presenting his revolver at several persons who attempted to detain him. No trace of him has yet been found.

BASE BALL DEAL.

MILWAUKEE Secures the Cincinnati Association Club.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 15.—President Gilette of the Milwaukee Base Ball Association, received a dispatch late yesterday afternoon from Cincinnati stating that Louisville, St. Louis, Washington, Boston and Baltimore have assented to the proposed transfer of the Cincinnati American Association team to Milwaukee. The terms offered are satisfactory to the Milwaukee men and they have wired their acceptances and the representatives of the Association will start for St. Louis at once to attend a meeting.

The terms include the retention of Bancroft as the financial manager of the team. It is said that the following players will be retained: Marr, Canavan, Willie Mains, Dywer and possibly Carney. "King" Kelly has already gone to the National League. This move of Milwaukee's without doubt means the collapse of the Western association since the Brewers were about their only solid team.

DESTRUCTIVE WINDSTORM.

LIMA, O., Aug. 15.—A tornado passed northeast of here yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The wind blew here but there was no great damage. Beaver Dam reported a heavy wind and hailstorm there, doing great damage to crops. Several large barns were unroofed at Rawson, hail was four inches deep and banked up higher in places. At Ida it was very severe, and much damage was done to the corn crop. The barn of Henry Miller, near West Cairo, was struck by lightning and totally destroyed. At Marion the hailstorm and wind played havoc with the tents of the Fourteenth regiment.

Rough on the Newspapers.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 15.—The following Philadelphia newspapers, which have published the mercantile appraiser's lists for the past two years, have been notified by Attorney General Hensel that they must refund the rebate of 40 per cent paid an alleged agent of the state for securing the advertisements: Press, North American, Inquirer, German Democrat, Bulletin and Telegraph. The papers are given until Sept. 1 to refund the money.

Fight Over Adam's Ale.

MARTIN'S FERRY, O., Aug. 15.—There is a prospect for litigation between Bridgeport and Martin's Ferry. Some time ago Bridgeport accepted a proposition to get water from the water works of Martin's Ferry, and are now laying pipes to convey the same. Martin's Ferry was to lay pipe and make the proper connections which the water works trustees refuse to do.

Will Be Sent Back to China.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Tsang Ding, the Chinese leper for whom the police have been looking, turned up at the home of his cousin in Mott street last night and gave himself up. He had been to consult an Italian doctor, who advised him to place himself in the hands of the authorities. His cousin will send him to China if he is permitted to do so.

GREENVILLE, O., Aug. 15.—Mrs. John Whited, of near Yorkshire, this county, gave birth to a boy with knees and hoofs like those of a horse.
